CLEVELAND MUSEUM OF ART WILL TEST RECORDED LECTURES

During the week of March 27, The Cleveland Museum of Art will install SOUNDTREK an electronic device which gives recorded talks on a two month trial basis. Gallery visitors who wish to hear a member of the Museum staff discuss the objects obtains from the guard a small receiver, about the size of a camera. The receiver is worn around the neck and has a device which fits on the ear.

The installation will be in Gallery 9 where the Impressionist and Post-Impressionist paintings are on display. During the trial period the 50 lecture devices will be available free to the public. If this equipment is installed permanently a small charge of 25 or 50 cents will be made. Recorders will be given to adults only. It will be necessary for users to leave their driver's license or other similar identification as a deposit until devices are returned.
